One pilot dead

Ransom deadlines pass as hijacked jet lands

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — With one pilot dead and 86 hostages still aboard, the hijackers of a West German airliner landed in Somalia today and let two ransom deadlines pass without carrying out a threat to blow up the plane.

A West German government spokesman said in Bonn the pilot was apparently shot dead before the Lufthansa Boeing 737 jet took off late Sunday from South Yemen. His body was dumped onto the runway shortly after it landed without permission in Mogadishu, the Somali capital.

The four hijackers have demanded the release of 13 terrorists imprisoned in West Germany and Turkey and payment of $15 million, but no effort to meet the demands was reported as the hijackers extended their deadline first to 10 a.m., EDT, then to 10:30 a.m.

The West German government let a Sunday deadline pass without any attempt at compliance. However, it sent negotiators to the airport in Mogadishu in an effort to save the hostages, who include a California woman with a heart condition and her 5-year-old son.

Armed soldiers surrounded the plane at a distance in front of the main terminal in the Somali capital — the jet's sixth stop since two Arabic-speaking men and two women commandeered it over the French Riviera last Thursday.

The West German government said it could not confirm beyond doubt that the dead man's body was that of the chief pilot, Juergen Schumann. But a spokesman said the dead man had a notebook containing the name Monika Schumann, the chief pilot's wife.

Monika Schumann, who has sons aged 11 and 2, told a German newspaper last week that her husband had expected his plane might be hijacked some day, and had told her: "If this happens, just stay calm. I'm not the type for dangerous heroics."

The death left 82 passengers and four crew members aboard the plane with the four hijackers. There was speculation that it would be dangerous for the plane to take off without a replacement pilot.

A spokesman for the Somali embassy in Nairobi said the plane was being refueled and was expected to take off again later in the day. But the Somali news agency said the government formed a ministerial committee including the West German ambassador to negotiate with the hijackers.

The Somali agency said a West German delegation led by a government minister was expected in Mogadishu shortly.

The kidnapers of West German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer also sent word that they would kill him if the hijackers' demands were not met by Sunday afternoon. There was no indication today whether Schleyer had been killed.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt continued to meet with his team of crisis advisers today. A spokesman said earlier the government was pursuing "all realistic possibilities" to free the hostages. The Turkish government said it would not consider freeing the two Palestinians unless West Germany released its 11 prisoners.

The Lufthansa Boeing 737 jetliner was hijacked on a flight from Majorca to West Germany on Thursday by two Arabic-speaking men and two women armed with pistols and plastic explosives.

The 82 passengers included an American woman with heart trouble, Christine Maria Santiago, 44, of Santee, Calif., and her 5-year-old son, Leo. Another son reported that the State Department appealed for her release because of her health, but the hijackers refused after finding a two-day supply of heart medicine in her purse.

The plane's stop in Mogadishu was its sixth, after Rome, Nicosia, Bahrain, Dubai and Aden, the capital of South Yemen.

Somalia, Vietnam and South Yemen were the three countries named by the hijackers as destinations for the imprisoned terrorists whose freedom they demanded. But the West German government said all three refused to accept the prisoners if they were freed.

The 11 West German terrorists whose freedom the hijackers demanded were the same group demanded by the German terrorists of the Red Army Faction who kidnaped Schleyer in Cologne Sept. 5. The kidnapers also demanded $6 million in ransom money, but the hijackers upped the ransom $9 million and added the two Palestinians.

House eyes compromise

Carter energy program to receive new chance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is unwilling to accept any compromise energy bill that contains any form of natural gas deregulation, the chairman of the Senate energy committee said today.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said that as a result, there may be no natural gas legislation enacted this year.

"The administration is going to be very tough and I'm pleased," Jackson said in an interview.

House and Senate conferees begin work on Tuesday on hammering out a compromise energy bill. Jackson is the head of the Senate's team of conferees.

Although the House has passed Carter's plan to lift the price lid on natural gas from $1.46 to $1.75 per thousand cubic feet and to extend controls to gas produced and used in the same state, the Senate has voted to lift controls from gas after two years.

"The administration holds all the cards," Jackson said. "Either there is no bill and the price remains at $1.46 or if there's a bill with deregulation, the President will veto it."

And Jackson said the administration has indicated it would prefer no bill at all to the Senate-passed measure.

Jackson had offered a "compromise" on the Senate floor during the natural gas debate that would deregulate gas prices after nine years. It was reluctantly supported by the administration at the time as preferable to the industry-backed deregulation bill that the Senate went on to pass.

Jackson's proposed compromise had been viewed as a possible middle ground for the House-Senate conferees to adopt. But Jackson said today that even this phased form of deregulation would probably be vetoed by the President.

He said he doesn't intend to even bring it up again.

The natural gas issue will be the last item the conferees consider so that if they remain deadlocked, it won't jeopardize other parts of the President's energy program, Jackson said.

Jackson said that he will work to get the conferees to approve natural gas legislation that the President will sign.

But he said at this point, no breakthrough appears in the making. The entire natural gas portion of the President's energy program may have

City has no plans to appeal decision

Police officer's suspension reversed

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

A Civil Service Commission ruling upholding the 28-day suspension of former Washington C.H. Police Sgt. Luther Anderson has been reversed at a hearing in Fayette County Common Pleas Court.

Anderson, who resigned his position on the city police force in June following the Civil Service Commission's ruling, will receive back pay for the 28 days he was suspended according to City Solicitor Gary D. Smith. Shortly after his resignation, Anderson filed suit in Fayette County Common Pleas Court appealing the commission's findings.

At a recent hearing, Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman reversed the suspension when the city was unable to produce a transcript of the commission's hearing held in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

"The reason (for the reversal) primarily was the recording equipment failed to reproduce the entire transcript of the hearing," Smith said Monday.

Smith also said the city does not plan to appeal the judge's decision.

Columbus attorney John Connors, who was representing Anderson, said once the city could not present an accurate transcript of the civil service hearing, the judge had no choice but to reverse the earlier finding.

Anderson was suspended for 28 days and demoted from sergeant to patrolman in May by Washington C.H. City Manager George H. Shapter after reviewing recommendations from Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott.

Anderson enlisted Connors' aid and filed an appeal with the local Civil Service Commission.

The three-member commission of William G. Ward, William B. Johnson and Burdette Johnson upheld the 28-day suspension but rejected the demotion following a closed hearing.

The ruling came in June shortly after the 28-day suspension expired. Shapter issued a memorandum to Chief Scott to reschedule Anderson for duty.

The 12-year veteran of the city police force would have retained his rank as sergeant, but instead of returning to duty he handed in his resignation.

Neither Anderson nor city officials would comment on the reason for the suspension last spring except that he allegedly violated departmental regulations. The regulations reportedly violated concerned Anderson's attire at a court hearing, where he was appearing as a witness.

Anderson, who still resides in Washington C.H., could not be reached for comment on the recent court finding overturning the 28-day suspension. However, there is no indication that he will return to the police force.

His attorney stated that further court proceedings may be filed.

LOOSE BALL—Offsides and No-Stars players scramble for a loose football during Saturday's benefit football game at Gardner Park Stadium. The annual football game, which benefits the Washington C.H. Area Community Education Program, ended in a 14-14 tie.

Benefit game's inventor absent

Rain hampers attendance at annual Offsides game

The fourth annual benefit football game featuring the Washington C.H. Offsiders was held Saturday despite the rain and the absence of guest announcer James Patrick Francis O'Neill.

O'Neill, who is also known as the "Morning Mayor" of Cincinnati because of his popular show on WLW-Radio, was unable to attend the benefit game which he helped establish four years ago.

The Offsides football team was the brainchild of O'Neill, who for years used his wit and on-air charm to lampoon Washington C.H. about the mythical professional football team.

Four years ago, O'Neill watched his mythical team take the field against another team his mind created, the Paint Creek No-Stars.

O'Neill has served as announcer for each of the last three benefit games, but not the fourth.

The Cincinnati radio personality presided over the "Peanut Olympics" at Kings Island amusement park Saturday afternoon with Billy Carter, the brother of President Jimmy Carter. When O'Neill began to leave the amusement park for the drive to Washington C.H., his automobile would not start.

Tony Pack, the director of the Washington C.H. Area Community Education Program, said he was disappointed in the weather Saturday, but not in the size of the crowd which was sparse.

"I couldn't blame them (area residents) for not coming because of the rain," Pack said adding that he would not know for several days how much money was raised from the daylong activities. All proceeds from the benefit game go to the Community Education program.

A carnival at Eym Park kicked off the Offsides festivities Saturday, a parade, the crowning of queens, a show of marching bands, and the football game rounded out the entertainment.

Warm autumn weather and blue skies prevailed over the carnival and other early activities Saturday, but clouds began to roll in and rain began falling shortly after the parade began.

The rain continued to fall throughout the football game, which was postponed two weeks ago because of similar weather.

QUEENS CROWNED—Christie Tarbutton (left) and Pam Doyle were named Miss Offsides and Miss No-Stars respectively Saturday night following the annual Offsides benefit football game.

Despite the rain, the two football teams, composed of local residents, took the field and fought to a 14-14 tie with one of the touchdowns being scored by a skydiver. Paul Crosby, 8 Hali Drive, filled in for O'Neill as announcer.

Near the end of the first half, three persons parachuted into Gardner Park Stadium wearing No-Star jerseys and one of the skydivers caught a pass and scored dragging the parachute behind him.

Following the football game, Miss Offsides and Miss No-Stars were crowned. Christie Tarbutton, who served as last year's homecoming queen at Miami Trace High School, was named Miss Offsides. Pam Doyle, who was crowned Miss Snow Queen last year, was named Miss No-Stars.

Also following the football game, four high school bands took the football field and performed for the audience.

Besides bands from Washington Senior and Miami Trace high schools were bands from Frankfort Adena and Cedarville high schools.

Last year, there was a marching band contest, but this year no competition was held. Plans for another contest were thwarted by the postponement of the Offsides festivities two weeks ago.

A number of high school bands were supposed to appear at Gardner Park following the game, but most of the bands were unable to attend the rescheduled game due to prior commitments.

Powdered alcohol studied for pre-mixed cocktails

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ultimate in the dry martini may be headed for the American market — powdered booze.

The Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is studying powdered alcohol, developed by a Japanese firm and being considered for sale in pre-mixed cocktails.

The actual alcohol, still in liquid form, is in tiny particles suspended in a powder that looks like a gelatin desert mix.

And, in fact, the first sales of the product in Japan have been as a rose wine gelatin.

But cocktails in small cans or foil packets are being studied for the American market. Global Marketing of Seattle, said distribution in this country depends on how the Treasury Department decides to tax the product.

A Treasury Department spokesman, who said the product's safety will be checked, noted that officials were having some problems deciding how to apply tax laws written for liquid alcohol to a powder.

Mike Hill of Global Marketing said initial plans, if the government approves, call for cocktails that could be made by simply adding water to the product.

He noted that there are premixed cocktails on the market, as well as powdered mixes to which the drinker adds his own alcohol to make a

She was preceded in death by a son.

Energy plan

to be bypassed this year, he added.

The conference committee will begin its work with the non-tax portions of the energy program.

Consideration of energy taxes will come later.

In the Senate, legislation is being considered that would temporarily block the government from reducing Medicaid payments to states that do not comply with federal requirements for independent medical inspections of nursing homes.

And the House is debating legislation to delay the Food and Drug Administration's proposed ban on saccharin for at least 18 months.

Although the House has acted on the full Carter energy plan, the Senate has yet to approve the tax parts. This opportunity could come on Friday, when the Senate may begin debating a "tax" bill approved by its finance committee that contains no taxes.

The committee voted late last week for legislation containing billions of dollars worth of tax breaks but none of the taxes Carter proposed to help save scarce fuels by making them more expensive.

The conference committee has the job of reconciling the energy bills passed by the House and the Senate.

The panel affords a final opportunity for the administration to try to salvage the Housepassed parts of the Carter plan that have been defeated in the Senate.

In other action this week, Congress is expected to send the President legislation to boost the minimum wage to $3.35 by 1981.

The saccharin ban postponement would allow time for new studies on whether the artificial sweetener poses a cancer risk to humans. It has been linked to bladder cancer in laboratory animals.

The Senate has already approved the 18-month moratorium and has voted to require that saccharin products carry cancer warnings like those on cigarette packs — a provision not contained in the bill before the House.

Public hearings begin Wednesday in the House ethics committee's investigation of alleged South Korean influencebuying attempts in Congress. Former South Korean intelligence and embassy officers are slated to testify through Friday.

The House will debate legislation to increase the percentage of oil imports carried by U.S. flag tankers and a major proposed revision of the Social Security program that would boost payments by high-paid workers and their employers.

The Senate, which has a light schedule for the week, may debate legislation increasing educational benefits for veterans 6.6 per cent and take final action on legislation outlawing the use of children in pornography.

Fifth continues protest behind bars

Four neutron bomb demonstrators at Carter church free from jail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four demonstrators who disrupted President Carter's church service by denouncing the neutron bomb are free on personal recognizance while the fifth is continuing his protest in jail.

The three men and two women, ejected from the First Baptist Church by ushers Sunday morning, were charged with "disturbing a religious congregation."

A sixth person who took part in the reading was not arrested.

Leaving the church, the President stopped briefly when another protester shouted for him to "veto the neutron bomb." Unruffled, Carter turned, asked, "What's that?" and then said, "They're fine young people."

Later, after returning to the White House, he told reporters: "I agree with their (the demonstrators') objective in eliminating nuclear weapons. (But) I think they were mistaken in trying to disrupt the church services."

"The Secret Service didn't feel I was in danger, and neither did I."

The neutron bomb is a highradiation nuclear weapon designed to kill people while leaving buildings relatively intact. Carter is considering deployment

Meets with pact backers

Carter steps up drive for canal treaty okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is stepping up his drive for Senate ratification of the Panama Canal treaty.

Carter set aside time today to meet with a new blue-ribbon committee of business and labor leaders, former military officers and members of past administrations who support the treaty, which is under fire from foreign-policy conservatives.

Members of the group, headed by Averill Harriman, the one-time ambassador to Moscow who has served as a government envoy in many capacities, organized the panel without official White House involvement, one aide said.

But others said the committee grew out of a breakfast for "opinion leaders" held at the White House recently by a task force headed by Hamilton Jordan, a top presidential assistant.

Members of the committee include Gen. Maxwell Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; George Ball, former undersecretary of state; AFL-CIO President George Meany; Lady Bird Johnson; former senator and ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge; former Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott; Chairman Irving Shapiro of E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.; Chairman Robert Anderson of the Atlantic Richfield Co., and New York lawyer John McCloy.

The meeting followed a busy weekend at the White House:

—The President's church services were disrupted Sunday by protesters against the neutron bomb. Carter told reporters at the White House when he returned from church that he considers the demonstrators "fine young people."

Without revealing whether he will decide against deploying the bomb, Carter said of the protesters: "I agree with their objective in eliminating nuclear weapons." But the President added that he thought the group was "mistaken in trying to disrupt the church services."

—A knowledgeable administration official said Carter got a message from Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan in which Dayan denied characterizing their recent talks as "brutal" and said he found them pleasant and productive.

Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz telephoned Secretary of State Cyrus Vance with the personal message from Dayan and asked that it be brought to Carter's attention, according to the official, who declined to be identified.

Carter said through a spokesman Friday he did not think the talks, held in New York earlier this month, were brutal and denied threatening Israel with isolation if it did not agree on preparations for Middle East peace talks.

—The White House made public on Saturday a Carter interview with newspaper editors and broadcast news directors during which the President said he is almost overwhelmed by all the things he is doing at once.

But Carter said during the session, which took place Friday at the White House, that he will not drop any initiatives because "I don't think it is in the best interests of the American people."

Carter has slipped below 50 per cent for the first time this month in his public approval rating.

Simple funeral services slated for Bing Crosby

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A simple, low-key funeral is planned for Bing Crosby on Tuesday, a family spokesman says.

Crosby's body was to arrive in Los Angeles tonight, accompanied by his son Harry, 19, on a flight from Spain. Crosby died of a heart attack on Friday in Madrid, after playing a round of golf. He had listed his age as 73, although baptismal records list the crooner as 74.

The Roman Catholic service will be held at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in Brentwood. Crosby, a devout Catholic, will be buried in a family plot at Holy Cross Cemetery near his parents and first wife, Dixie Lee, who died of cancer in 1952.

Crosby's second wife, Kathryn, told newsmen outside their home in the San Francisco suburb of Hillsborough that the service would be a low Mass.

"He wanted only the children and myself," she said, "but I think there are those who worshiped him for 40 years who have a right to be there."

Maury Foldare, Crosby's press agent, said several of Crosby's office employees would be invited, in addition to his four sons from his first marriage, his brother and his sister.

Man takes overdose according to plan with longtime friend

SWARTHMORE, Pa. (AP) — Morgan Sibbett and Wallace Proctor shared a final dinner and reflected on the brilliant sunset. Dr. Proctor then went upstairs and quietly died — all according to plan, Sibbett says.

Sibbett, 65, publicly acknowledged on Sunday that he allowed his friend of 39 years to use his home as the stage for the suicide by a drug overdose two months ago.

"Our leave-taking was quite matter-of-fact," said Sibbett. "They were just quiet days of reminiscence." The two friends spent five days together, going for walks, dining out and preparing for Proctor's death.

"We had said good-bye adequately. Nothing could be added," said Sibbett, an engineer befriended by Proctor when the two met while working in the oil fields of Saudi Arabia in 1938.

Proctor, 75, a dermatologist from Pocatello, Idaho, was wracked by advancing Parkinson's disease. He wrote relatives in July that medicine he took to control the trembling of his hands required ever increasing doses.

"Some of you may look upon suicide with uneasiness or disfavor, but it may also represent a logical, considerate and effective means to satisfy one's responsibility to the world," Proctor wrote family members on July 30.

According to Sibbett, Proctor chose to die here because he knew suicide was not a crime in Pennsylvania and he was concerned about taking his life in Pocatello, where his wife, Marie, works as a nurse.

A week after the Aug. 16 suicide, Sibbett informed Delaware County District Attorney Frank Hazel by letter of the circumstances surrounding Proctor's death.

Record judgment awarded by jury

LISBON, Ohio (AP) — The largest judgment in Columbiana County history was awarded Saturday to an East Palestine, Ohio, man who lost both arms in an industrial accident.

A jury awarded $1.2 million to Terry Walters in what was described by his attorney as "an exceedingly important precedent."

Attorney Stan Chesley of Cincinnati said Walters' claim of negligence against an electrical contractor parallels claims filed in connection with the May 28 fire at the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire in Southgate, Ky., which killed 164 persons.

Walters, 17 when the accident occurred in August 1974, was injured when he came in contact with a high voltage wire while walking on a catwalk at a Lisbon clay-making firm.

of the weapon as a deterrent against a possible Warsaw Pact invasion of Western Europe.

Critics of the neutron bomb say it is inhumane and would increase the chances of a nuclear confrontation. Carter aides have said the President will decide before the end of the year whether to produce and deploy it.

Carter, his wife Rosalynn, 9-year-old daughter Amy and a group of friends from Georgia, including Mrs. Carter's former Bible teacher, attended services at the First Baptist Church.

The President and his wife attended adult Bible class in the back balcony, then took their usual seats in the sixth pew on the right side of the 175-year-old stone-and-block church.

As Pastor Charles Trentham stepped to the pulpit to begin his sermon, the first of the demonstrators, dressed in slacks and a brown sweater, stood up and began to read the anti-bomb statement.

An usher grabbed the protester, put his hand over the man's mouth, pulled him out of the pew and led him to the door.

A second protester, Elizabeth McAlister, a former Roman Catholic nun who married antiwar priest Philip Berrigan, stood in another pew across the aisle and continued the reading.

An usher tried to take the statement out of her hand, then sat her down in the pew. She was not immediately removed from the church and was not arrested.

Another protester then stood up and continued the statement but was gagged by an usher, subdued and led to the door. Three other demonstrators, trying to read the statement, were also silenced and escorted from the church.

Police identified the arrested demonstrators as Mary Catherine Lyons, Rosemary Maguire, Ladon Sheats and Jim McNiel, all of Baltimore, and Paul Hood of Philadelphia. All but Sheats were released on their own recognizance after booking.

The charge carries a maximum $100 fine, police said.

Stock list dips lower

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market headed lower today, adding to last week's losses amid continuing interest-rate worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 2.86 to 818.78 in the first half hour.

Losers took a slight lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market was unable to attract much buying interest amid fears that interest rates would continue their recent rise.

Westinghouse Electric, the early volume leader among NYSE issues, dropped 1/2 to 17.

Gold stocks advanced with the London bullion price crossing the $160 level to its highest point in more than two years.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 3.47 to 821.64, reducing its loss for the week to 18.71 points.

But losers slightly outnumbered gainers on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totalled 20.41 million shares, down from 23.87 million on Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index edged up .02 to 51.24.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .02 to 115.59.

State's film bureau director nearly lands Lake Erie movie

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The huge killer shark slithered about Lake Erie, gobbling up unsuspecting boaters and swimmers, instilling terror up and down the shoreline.

Lake Erie? The scene was clear in the mind of Mari Soult.

Ms. Soult, who prefers that designation, is paid to think such thoughts as director of the Ohio Film Bureau.

Her imagination almost brought the shooting of "Jaws II" to Ohio's Lake Erie shore before losing out to Pensacola, Fla.

Through the efforts of Ms. Soult's and her staff of two, Hollywood film crews have shot three movies in the state within the past 12 months, and at least six more are planned.

"At first my staff and I were laughing about it all, but when I was out on the West Coast this spring, Universal told me that they had come

Betty Ford says

Nixon was 'sick'

NEW YORK (AP) — Former first lady Betty Ford says her husband's pardon of Richard Nixon probably cost Ford the 1976 election but he had to do it because former president Nixon was "a sick man."

Mrs. Ford, quoted in the current issue of McCall's, said: "Many people who definitely were for Jerry could not bring themselves to vote for him because he pardoned Nixon."

"I don't think they realized what a sick man Nixon was — physically sick — which tended to affect ... decisions."

The magazine also quoted Mrs. Ford as saying her husband took more criticism from the media than President Carter is getting because "Jerry was a Republican, and he was associated with Nixon — and anyone associated with Nixon was automatically a 'bad guy.'"

Also in the interview, Mrs. Ford gave Rosalynn Carter high marks, saying Mrs. Carter is less outspoken than she was and "probably keeps her husband out of a lot of trouble, which I didn't."

very close to seriously considering this area."

Ms. Soult said she had put together a proposal that proclaimed "you can shoot anything in Ohio."

She said Universal was reluctant to return to Martha's Vineyard, Mass., to film the sequel to "Jaws," where the crew encountered problems with tides, water temperature, cold weather and salt water that kept corroding the man-made shark.

Ms. Soult said her proposal described how each problem could have been avoided by using Bass Island in Lake Erie off the Ohio shoreline.

"We promote New England settings highly in our campaigns," Ms. Soult said. "We have much of what New England has but we can shoot it far more cheaply because of few union problems and more cooperation. We can recreate the eastern part of the country in our Western Reserve area (near Cleveland) with its homes, restored villages, brick streets, country canals, rivers, lakes, foliage and rolling hills."

"I am highly promoting Cleveland in my next campaign as an area that can be shot to duplicate Chicago, New York or Boston. Also, Cleveland's suburbs can have many different looks. We can provide Washington townhouse brownstones. Steel mills provide another locale."

"Because filmmaking is new in Ohio, our cooperation has been optimum, and we don't have the serious permit problems of other places. Often the rents are much lower," she said.

The state Department of Economic and Community Development established the film bureau 2½ years ago. In 1975, before establishment of the bureau, Ohio was the scene of filming for "Harry and Walter Go to New York" starring James Caan and Elliott Gould. It was filmed at Columbus' Marble Cliff Quarry and Mansfield's grey-stone reformatory.

Recently, "Harvest Home," a NBC-TV movie based on a Thomas Tryon novel, starring Bette Davis was filmed in northeastern Ohio, and last summer, Cleveland and area steel towns were the locations for "The Deer Hunter," an EMI Universal film, starring Robert DeNiro.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

The dangerous combination of rising unemployment and inflation in the face of lagging real investment and after-tax incomes demand some immediate tax relief for all Americans.

Action on badly needed legislation calling for a 30 per cent across-the-board tax cut has been stymied so far by the majority on the House Ways and Means Committee. In fact, the chairman this week publicly stated his opposition to such a cut.

Efforts are underway to jar the bill loose from committee, and tax-weary Americans should hope that these efforts are successful. Recent figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that the cost of living for middle income families rose by 78.9 per cent between 1967 and 1976. While that was happening, personal income taxes on middle income families went up 110.5 per cent.

It is conceivable that at some point in the future—probably during an election year—the Carter Administration might get around to recommending some kind of tax reduction.

In the meantime, however, the President has proposed large tax increases for social security, and his energy bill is in reality an enormous tax bill. Furthermore, the IRS wants to tax fringe benefits, and the Administration's tax reform efforts are aimed at raising taxes on investment income and capital gains.

Flying in the face of this policy is a noticeable weakness of capital spending by business for modernization of plant and equipment, which creates the jobs needed for the future and which leads to higher real wages.

Rising inflation daily increases the taxes of everyone, as individual incomes are raised and propelled into higher tax brackets. The real estate tax burden will be raised by about $5 billion this year alone. And effective tax rates on all Americans will be raised by as much as 30 per cent by 1980 if unchecked.

The bill that I am supporting would reduce all individual income tax rates by an average of 30 per cent over three years. This would reduce the highest individual tax rate from 70 per cent to 50 per cent; the lowest rate from 14 to 8 per cent; and all other rates in between by a comparable amount.

It would also reduce the corporate tax rate from 48 to 45 per cent over three years.

The highest tax reductions would be reflected in the paychecks of those Americans in the low and middle income tax brackets. Almost two-thirds of the tax cut would go to families with adjusted gross incomes below $30,000, and 40 per cent, to families with incomes below $20,000.

It is important to increase after-tax income for a number of reasons. Such an increase would help expand the economy by increasing the incentive to work, produce and invest.

As employment and the Gross National Product increase, so will Government tax revenues. Under these circumstances, it won't be long before the Government will be collecting more tax revenues than it would without a tax cut, because the tax base itself will be expanded.

Lower tax rates will do more than provide incentives that encourage work effort and production. To the extent that those tax reductions reduce the cost of labor to employers they will encourage additional job creation and employment opportunities.

Thus, the supply of jobs will be increased, which will generate more taxable income, more tax revenues, and lower government deficits.

The three-year tax cut bill is expected to pump $43.4 billion into the economy and open up 1.2 million jobs in the first year alone. It is expected that in the course of three years, over seven and a half million people would be added to the nation's payrolls as a result of putting the money of the American people back into their pockets.

A tax cut is needed now. The forces of inflation and the evils they spawn will continue to grow in the face of indecision and inaction.

Another 'Hustler' pamphlet distributed in two cities

CINCINNATI (AP) — Reprints of a Hustler magazine article graphically depicting child abuse have been mailed to 700,000 households around Cincinnati and Atlanta, where the magazine is banned from distribution on grounds it is obscene.

Recipients of the mailout were urged by Hustler publisher Larry Flynt to oust public officials who played a part in banning the publication.

The mailout, which Flynt said cost him $150,000, started showing up around Cincinnati on Saturday, but Atlanta residents weren't likely to get the pamphlet before today. Flynt said about 350,000 copies of the pamphlet went to each of the two cities.

Flynt was to be arraigned today on obscenity charges in state courts in Gwinnett and Fulton counties in Georgia. The charges for distributing obscene materials are in connection with his publication of Hustler.

"In my opinion, photographs of battered children are a lot more obscene than nude photographs," Flynt said Sunday in Atlanta.

The pamphlet, entitled "Child Abuse in America: Slaughter of the Innocents," was a reprint of an article which appeared in the October issue of Hustler.

The pamphlets were similar to those picturing Vietnam war dead and wounded sent to 400,000 Cincinnati residences in November 1976. Flynt said the mailout was to prove that war is more obscene than nudity, which Hustler features regularly.

The antiwar mailout resulted in charges being filed against Flynt for distributing material harmful to minors. The charges are pending. Flynt said he doubted the child abuse pamphlet would be construed as obscene.

"The idea behind the mailout is simple. The magazine doesn't have distribution in these two cities, and everyone should have been able to see it."

"Secondly, the prosecutors in these two cities have a crusade to prevent distribution of Hustler. Well, I have a crusade, too. I want to see both of them out of office."

The pamphlet urged Cincinnati voters to unseat Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon L. Leis Jr. and Common Pleas Court Judge William J. Morrissey, who presided over Flynt's obscenity trial last February. It also called for defeat of Georgia's Fulton County Solicitor Hinson McAuliffe.

Flynt is free pending appeal of the Cincinnati conviction, which carries a sentence of from seven to 25 years in prison and a fine of $11,000.

Liz Taylor backs governor hopeful

CLIFFSIDE PARK, N.J. (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor spoke to a $450-a-couple Republican fundraising dinner here and stepped to the microphone to say what she thought of the New Jersey GOP candidate for governor.

"I can't promise you I won't bore you, but I can promise you I won't bore you for long," Miss Taylor told about 500 guests at the Palisadium Restaurant.

"I think Ray Bateman is one of the more interesting politicians I've heard about," she said Sunday.

New push for TV upgrading

In the movement to prod the networks into better television programming for children, any new source of support is welcome. This goes double for the push from a task force set up by wives of members of Congress.

To set the stage for its recommendations, the group observes that in its opinion "commercial television puts an excessively disproportionate emphasis on the destructive aspects of life, but we know that television can play a positive role in American society." Many would agree - but what then? The simplest and most desirable way of handling the situation, we are told, would be for the networks to impose a solution on their own. To that conclusion the task force adds: "In the continuing absence of such a solution, it falls to the American people to inform the networks of the importance of this problem through advertiser boycotts, through advertiser boycotts, through demands for governmental action, or by other means."

Our feeling is that the last category, "other means," offers the greatest promise for achieving the desired goal without coercion or the risk of governmental control. In particular, we shy away from any encouragement of official intervention in decisions about program content.

Organized effort is important, as the National PTA has demonstrated in its series of hearings on televised violence. Individual effort, many times multiplied, also is important. Demands for better programming can be made at the local level and to the networks directly. As the task force of Congress wives rightly emphasized, "it falls to the American public to inform the networks" that a great many people want something constructive done.

THESE DAYS...By John Chamberlain

Shooting down one more tax balloon

The Carter administration is agonizing over the question of tax reform. Before it is through it will discover that the graduated or progressive income tax can't be reformed. It can only be changed in ways that won't alter its essential nature.

When you set about the business of taking bigger percentage bites from people in the higher income brackets, you inevitably discover that you have depleted the savings that are necessary to create new jobs for an expanding population. So, to restore a necessary dynamic balance, you have to create tax exemptions. A patchwork system is the inevitable result. The business of "reforming" such a system boils down to reshuffling the exemptions. Some categories are hurt, some are favored. But the net of it all is to substitute one patchwork system for another.

Currently the Carter administration is floating some trial balloons. One of them is the proposal to disallow tax deductions for the interest paid on mortgages. Coyle, the administration suggests that the disallowance will be limited to mortgages on the more expensive dwellings. But this would not merely hit the rich. It would hit the construction industry, which means that it would hit the unions. It would also serve to immure the well-to-do in smaller homes which they might otherwise abandon to poorer folk. The impact on the rental market would hurt the lower brackets, not the high.

According to Eli Broad, whose firm, Kaufman and Broad, Inc., has built more than 100,000 housing units in the U.S., France, West Germany, Belgium and Canada, we are on the verge of a housing boom that will increase at a faster rate than the gross national product over the next five years. Broad's opinion is corroborated by the Harvard-MIT Joint Center for Urban Studies, which predicts that new U.S. households will increase by some 22 million before 1985. A lot of the optimism is based on the demographic fact that the 20-29-year-old age group is just now coming into the market for homes. The 20-29 group may be just getting started in life, but the growth of the two-income family gives them money for the $6,750 down payment required on a $60,000 house by FHA guidelines. The FHA has proposed lowering the down payment to $2,500, which flies in the face of the administration's general philosophy of tax "reform."

What stands out about housing is that any tinkering with the tax exemption pattern would only serve to put the federal government deeper into the business of subsidizing rentals. Thus the tax "reform" would defeat itself.

As it is now, investment in a house is a sure way of beating the inflation, or at least keeping up with it. The stock market, which was once considered to be a sensitive repository of value, has let people down badly. Savings bank deposits may pay more than the average stock, but hardly enough to stay even with the annual rate of inflation. Mutual funds have taken a beating. But homes have been spectacular preservers of capital. A three-bedroom house bought for $31,000 in 1967 now sells for $48,000. If you act in time by buying a new house after selling you don't have to pay on capital gains.

There is more to it than that if you are building a new house today. By making use of the newer insulation and more economical water usage you can save $600 on the annual utilities bills. This means that you can afford to float a bigger mortgage. The mortgage, in turn, functions as a tax shelter. You also deduct your real estate taxes.

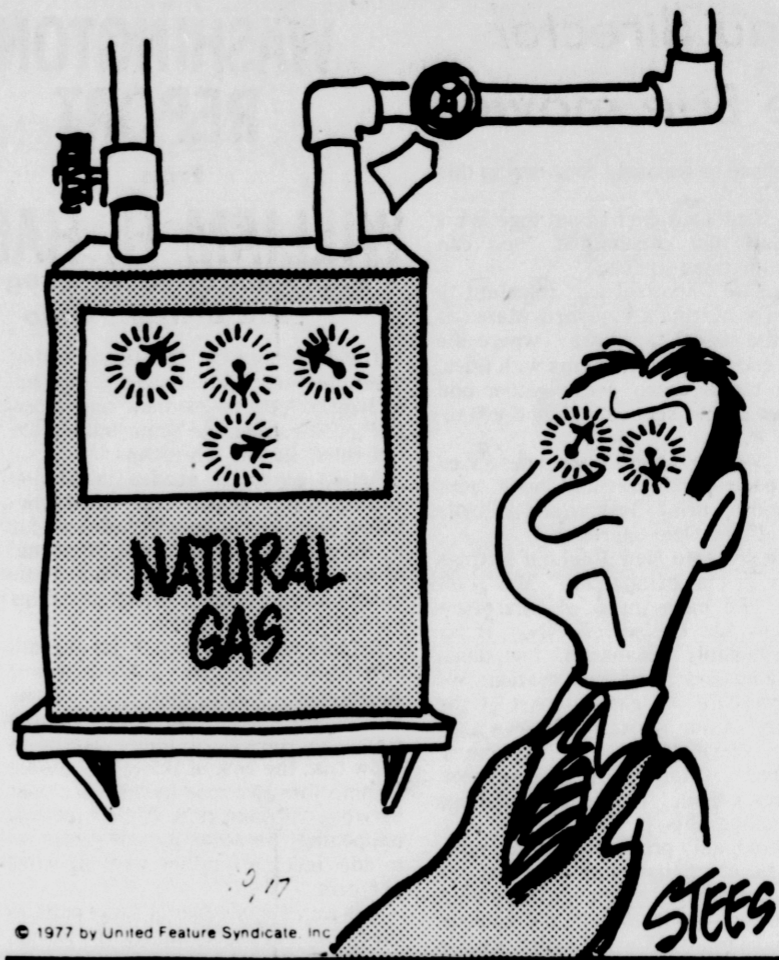

Will the Carter administration dare to monkey with tax deductibility for housing interest payments? Not as long as the so-called progressive income tax makes savings impossible without special exemptions. The seed money for new investment, in housing as well as in other things, must come from somewhere or the capitalist system will go kaput.

OSU survey discloses

Freedom is important for childless couples

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Personal freedom topped the reasons why married couples chose to be childless, according to a survey conducted at the University of Akron.

Dr. Margaret M. Poloma, associate professor of sociology at University of Akron and Ellen Mara Nason, a former student, questioned husbands and wives of 30 middle income, midwestern couples whose salaries ranged from $6,000 to $28,000 annually.

Five couples were irrevocably committed to remaining childless, the study showed, because either the husband and-or wife had been sterilized. Eight couples reflected strong commitment, 12 reasonable commitment and five commitment with reservations.

When asked "what if your wife should die," most of the men said that a woman's having children or desiring to have children would not be a reason for them not marrying her," the study said. "With the women, it was a much more personal commitment, and many of the husbands felt it was only appropriate that the woman makes the major decision because it's the woman who gets stuck with the child rearing," the survey said.

Respondents readily delineated the advantages or benefits of remaining childless, but could not easily and readily delineate the disadvantages or costs," the survey, released this week, reported.

"The factors most often cited were that they might regret the decision when they grew old and the corresponding 'lonely old age,' some social disadvantages (parents associating with other parents because of children's friendships) and the tax structure," the survey reported.

Five advantages of being childless were, in order of importance, personal freedom, monetary advantage, better marital relationship, importance of the wife's career and helping to curb overpopulation.

Although couples interviewed said they were permanently and voluntarily childless, their resolve to maintain that status varied, Dr. Poloma said.

"When asking some probing questions, it became apparent that some of these couples may wind up being parents, perhaps through accident if nothing else," she said.

The research concluded: "Childless couples are less likely to express a religious preference or a strong religious attachment."

"Couples without children are more likely to be oriented to the husband-wife relationship."

"Husbands in childfree couples are less likely to perceive themselves as breadwinners and 'main earners' within the family than are fathers."

Rose Bowl game never on Sunday

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for letting your readers know that next year the Rose Bowl game will be played on Jan. 2. Since your column appeared, we've received countless calls asking for "verification."

The "Never On Sunday" tradition in Pasadena dates back to 1883, when tournament officials were first faced with the problem of disrupting church services with a parade. Next year will mark the 13th time our festival has been held on January 2 instead of on New Year's Day.

Perhaps your readers would like to know that the Rose Bowl game will be played on January 2 again in 1984, 1989, and 1995.

FOREST W. FOSTER, PASADENA DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS,

TOURNAMENT OF ROSES ASSN.
DEAR FOREST: Thanks. The information will be helpful to those who wish to plan ahead.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to say that her girlfriend never shaved her armpits or used a deodorant, and you suggested that the girl be told (nicely) that she offended. Why?

A simply anonymous note would solve the problem, and at the same time avoid embarrassment. We used this system in the government office where I work, and it was very effective.

DEAR L: Effective perhaps, but I wouldn't advise anyone to do something I wouldn't do. Any anonymous notes smack of tactlessness.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman asking if she could wear a white wedding dress though she had been raped prompted this letter.

I am a rape-crisis counselor. Please make your readers aware that there are rape-crisis centers across the country now. For those in small communities without such centers, there is probably a center in the nearest large city. If there is a crime phone line in the victim's area, they will know where the nearest rape-crisis center is.

These centers are staffed with professional counselors as well as volunteers who have had special training in rape-victim counseling. They can offer emotional support and often can accompany the women to seek medical and legal help. Any rape-crisis center I have been in contact with has the highest code of confidentiality, and counseling ethics.

After a woman has been humiliated, degraded, overpowered and even beaten, she is often made to believe that it is her fault that the incident occurred. Some carry the scars of their experience for years.

It is important for victims of sexual assault to know that such services are available. Also, it might inspire people in communities without such service to try to get one started.

A low pressure system in southern New England has been spreading rain and thunderstorms from Virginia to Maine.

The same system was responsible for rain and snow extending from New York State and Pennsylvania into the lower Great Lakes and upper Ohio Valley.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Barry Gordon was only three years old, he climbed on a chair, sang "Cry" and won a preliminary round in "Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hours."
That and the fact he lost in the finals to an Italian orphans' choir could have assured him lasting oblivion. But 25 years later, he's still in show biz, a regular on ABC's "Fish" series.
"I shouldn't have expected miracles," he laughed, explaining that the Mack effort began as a neighbor's gag. "If there were to be miracles, I would've gone into the Italian orphans' choir."

It's one of the ironies of acting that Gordon, son of an exradio announcer, plays a bumbling child psychologist in "Fish."

At 13, he played an object of concern to a child psychologist in "A Thousand Clowns." The kiddie shrink in the hit play was trying to take Gordon away from his happy-go-lucky uncle, played by Jason Robards.

But Gordon, who starred in both the Broadway and film version of "Clowns," seems to have grown up eminently well-adjusted, even though he was performing most of the years he was growing.

Born in Brookline, Mass., briefly raised in Albany, N.Y., his fledgling "Cry" led to other singing jobs on other major TV shows and then a hit record, "Nuttin' For Christmas," at age six.

That led to a Las Vegas stint in "Ken Murray's Blackouts" and a chat there with Sheldon Leonard of the "Make Room For Daddy" series. The chat led to his first acting job and a temporary farewell to singing.

Gordon said his family moved to Los Angeles, and while his father tried to get into radio here, he proceeded into acting, appearing in such TV shows as "Alfred Hitchcock" and the "GE Theater."

But after "Clowns," he had trouble finding work, had the child star blahs. And, he said, rather than rush into a bad movie and "take a giant step backward," he hit the books, then enrolled at UCLA.

He dropped out after a while to study guitar, write songs and make the rounds of record studios. He even cut one album. Alas, it was mellow music in an era of ear-shattering acid rock, and it didn't sell.

But Gordon, a surprisingly good guitarist and vocalist whose music is in the Kenny Rankin vein, hasn't given up on singing, even though he's succeeding as an actor again, getting good weekly exposure in "Fish."

"I haven't really pushed it yet, but I'm supposed to start doing a bunch of talk shows soon, and that should help because it'll get my songs around a little bit," he said.

The light side

YADKINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Stanley Allen says the secret to his success is the crack between his front teeth.

Allen outspat a group of men and women of all ages to take the grand prize — a spittoon — in the weekend Harvest Festival tobacco-spitting contest. His winning mark: 20 feet, 5 1/2 inches.

Allen, a 30-year-old resident of Tobaccoville, says he has the benefit of many years of experience. He has been chewing since he was 14, and he doesn't care if some people think his expectorating is unbecoming.

"They say it doesn't look nice," Allen said.

Among the competitors was Mabel Brinkley, 55, of East Bend.

After her 15-foot effort, she said: "Most women dip snuff. But chewing tobacco doesn't make a mess the way dipping snuff does."

"You don't get it on your mouth," Allen said.

WHEELING, Ill. (AP) — About 15 high schoolers had more in mind than lunch when they went to a McDonald's restaurant.

After ordering food and eating it, the group picked up a 7-foot-tall, 100-pound statue of the Ronald McDonald clown, a symbol of the nationwide fast food chain.

Unnoticed by management because of the noon rush, they carried the $1,000 statue outside, placed it in a van and drove away, police said.

"They obviously had planned to take it," said Larry Utley, an assistant manager. "They had the doors of the van and the front doors of the restaurant open and ready."

Police tracked down the students and the statute was returned later in the day. No charges were filed.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Dog show addicts, cat fanciers and equestrians take note, a new kind of animal is slithering into the limelight — snakes.

And what's more, snake fanciers are perfectly serious about it.

"We're trying hard to keep from looking like carnival people," said Mary Hart of Canby, whose 13-foot spotted Burmese Python took grand champion honors during the weekend at the Northeast Reptile Association's second annual snake, lizard and turtle show.

Although you can't very well put a snake through its paces like a horse, or "stack" one like a dog, there are judging criteria.

Judges Frank Slavens, a reptile keeper at the Woodland Park Zoo in Seattle, and Richard Werner, a Portland veterinarian, ranked the coiling critters on disposition, general appearance, markings and showmanship of their owners.

Grand Champion Moria, now a 4-year-old, is expected to reach about 25 feet at maturity. Miss Hart, 27, says the snake is easy to care for — it eats nine rats a month.

"What's more, you can go away and leave them for a couple of weeks at a time and not worry."

Canfora fights to hold post

BARBERTON, Ohio (AP) — Barberton Councilman Albert Canfora, who is fighting for his political life because of his involvements in demonstrations at Kent State University, predicts that Tuesday's election for his recall will fail.

The 51-year-old Canfora, who has been a councilman since 1964, says he's optimistic of the voters' confidence in him despite a Summit County Common Pleas Court ruling last week which rejected his challenge to the election. Canfora contends that 47 of the 227 signatures approved by the elections board were invalid. He said the petitions contain discrepancies and misrepresentations.

But Judge Evan Reed ruled there was "no real proof" of any fraud or impropriety. "It would be impossible at this late date to stop the machinery when the election has been set up," Reed said Wednesday.

Tricks with Treats

COINS, CUPCAKES AND COOKIES add to Halloween spirits. The coins go into UNICEF collection boxes. The cupcakes and cookies are delicious treats for costumed tricksters.

by JOAN O'SULLIVAN

When the doorbell goes "ding-dong" on October 31, it won't be Avon calling but Halloween trick or treat visitors collecting cakes, cookies and candies for their loot bags, and coins for their UNICEF boxes.

Once an all-out effort to stock up on a lifetime supply of sweets, Halloween for the past 25 years has been a children-for-children movement. The UNICEF coin collection box has made the difference, giving youngsters a cause to rally around. And what better cause than helping less fortunate peers.

Probably nowhere else in the world but in the U.S. do goblins, witches, skeletons, black cats, and cartoon characters make the Halloween rounds hoping to rustle up $5 to stock a pond with baby fish for a protein supply; $15 to buy a brooder of back chicks; $17 to buy a midwife's kit; a bit $92 for a deep-well pump to supply an entire village with safe water. And that's just a sampling of what UNICEF collections supply to hundreds of millions of underprivileged children in over 100 Asian, African, Latin American and Middle Eastern countries.

When neighborhood youngsters put on their annual colorful costume parade, show your appreciation by stocking a supply of treats for them plus a collection of coins to fill their UNICEF boxes with help and hope for needy youngsters around the world.

If you're baking and making for this fun-filled fall holiday, try today's recipes. They're for goodies witches, ghosts and goblins will love gobbling up:

Buckeye Festival set Oct. 22 by Leesburg's Jaycee chapter

LEESBURG, Ohio — The village of Leesburg will usher in the Halloween season with its annual Buckeye Festival on Saturday, Oct. 22.

The festival, sponsored by the Leesburg Jaycee chapter, will feature food, games, masquerade judging, bingo and a dance.

Activities will begin at 11 a.m. when the Leesburg American Legion opens its fish fry tent in the downtown area. The Legion auxiliary will serve chili, pie, cake and coffee from the nearby American Legion hall, and a bake sale will be conducted by the youth group of the East Monroe United Methodist Church.

The Jaycees will operate several games along S. Fairfield Street.

METZ, France (AP) — An insurance company has been ordered to pay a $1,200 claim for damage to a car caused by a mouse trapped in the car's engine.

According to testimony, mice nesting under the car's hood became trapped by the fanbelt and damaged the auto's cooling system. The award covered the cost of repair work.

The court said the award was justified because of a clause in the policy that said the company would cover "damage caused by impact with a fixed or moving body."

contest will be held at 4 p.m. in the Fairfield High School gymnasium. Prizes will be awarded for the most beautiful, ugliest, funniest and most original costumes.

During the costume judging, the winner of the Buckeye Festival queen contest will be announced. Candidates for the title are Terri Lawwell, Beulah Pennington, Lori Britain and Tonya Price.

Trophies will be awarded for the three best Halloween floats in the 5 p.m. parade. Units will congregate at the high school between 4 and 5 p.m.

In the event of rain, the parade will be cancelled and the Fairfield High School marching band will perform in the gymnasium.

A chili supper will get under way at 4:30 p.m. in the basement of the Leesburg United Methodist Church, sponsored by the church youth group.

During the Buckeye Festival, the Leesburg Lions Club will hold a raffle drawing, and a gag drawing for a pet goat will be held by the village's Jaycee chapter.

The Leesburg-Fairfield Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor bingo games during the evening, and a 50-50 dance will be held from 8 to 11 p.m. at the high school gym. The Highland County Ramblers will provide music for the event, and the Leesburg Jaycettes will sell refreshments.

Columbus residents escape injury in automobile fire

Four Columbus residents escaped injury when their car burst into flames along Ohio 734 in Jeffersonville early Monday.

The car was totally destroyed by the fire, which began around 1:15 a.m. this morning, according to a report by Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

Truman L. Barnes of Columbus, who was driving the car east on Ohio 734, reportedly stated he noticed a flash of lights in the rear view mirror. When he looked back he saw the rear of the car was on fire.

The Jeffersonville Fire Department responded to the fire, but the 1969 model Cadillac was later listed as a total loss.

Three other persons were in the vehicle when the incident occurred. They were Florence Estridge, Al Morgan and Tim Whitmire, all of Columbus. They all escaped injury.

Washington C.H. firefighters responded to a reported vehicle fire Saturday night near 121 W. Market St.

Fire officials reported a 1973 model Oldsmobile, belonging to Cassidy Oldsmobile, Inc., 238 S. Main St., caught fire when the engine block overheated and some oil on the side of the motor began smoking. The fire was out by the time firefighters arrived. They had received the call around 7:10 p.m.

Damages to the vehicle had not been determined at the time of the report.

Paper drive held by local Jaycees

The Washington C.H. Jaycee chapter held its weekly paper drive Saturday at the Seaway parking lot on Clinton Avenue.

Twenty-three local residents took advantage of the opportunity to dispose of their old newspapers, catalogs, and magazines at the paper drive, according to Leroy Farris, project chairman.

Other businesses and individuals contributing to the paper drive were the Record-Herald, the Weekly Advertiser, Seaway, WCHO Radio, Carolyn Farris, Jerry Gault, and Brian Johnson.

The next Jaycee paper drive will be held on Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at the Seaway parking lot on Clinton Avenue.

The Jaycee red paper shed is located at the east end of the Seaway parking lot where paper may be dropped off at

The case of Robert Boyd: private fiefdom, public cash

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON—Robert Boyd, a $47,500-a-year administrative law judge, is a well-groomed six-footer with the imperial manner of a Southern plantation owner. He runs his government office as if it were his private business operation, ordering his workers to take care of his most trivial personal affairs.

Boyd, despite his work as the National Transportation Safety Board's chief law judge, finds time to run a tobacco business on the side. He is also active in the Boyd Family Foundation and chairs the membership committee of the Belle Haven Country Club in Virginia. And his office employees frequently have to set aside government business to help the judge with his personal affairs.

For example, Boyd enlisted his government secretary, Bette Dodge, to type his voluminous business correspondence. She even wrote some of the letters herself. "I have a new secretary," Boyd wrote to a country club colleague, "and she is working with me on the membership matter. . . If you have any questions at any time, please call her." Boyd then listed her office phone number.

In another letter the energetic Boyd described the need for a questionnaire so country club members could list their "sizes and preference in golfing attire and equipment." He added: "I can get the office to type and mimeograph it."

Mrs. Dodge, who no longer works for Boyd, admitted to us she handled the judge's private work. "He felt he was entitled to the personal work," she said, adding: "Sometimes he asked too much."

Boyd once instructed a government worker to Xerox 150 copies of a 17-page document entitled "The Boyd Family Directory." At first, Boyd insisted he only ordered 50 copies. But when our reporter Bob Gettlin showed him a copy of the duplicating request, the judge cast an imperious eye on the evidence, squirmed uncomfortably in his chair, and blurted: "Okay, you got me. Write it up!"

Boyd, a 35-year government veteran, has also managed his tobacco business from behind his federal desk. He sent a letter, for instance, informing the Fidelity National Bank of Virginia that "I only need $4,000 to cover the purchase of a second-hand tractor and related equipment."

He has frequently made private, long-distance calls from his government phone, according to our sources. His business contacts were advised to call his office person-to-person collect, our sources say. Office workers would deliberately reject the calls, which Boyd later returned from his phone. On

Hormones may help mentally retarded learn

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A substance derived from human hormones may help the mentally retarded learn, says an Ohio State University researcher.

Dr. Curt A. Sandman, a psychologist, cautioned that the substance — neuropeptide — won't cure mental retardation.

"It can help the retarded retain information, thus learn," Sandman said.

He stressed that in his studies, human subjects have not been given "a drug in the conventional sense. This is not an alien substance. The body already has it," Sandman said.

Neuropeptide is part of a hormone which is found naturally in the body. It can either be injected or given orally to patients and it can be manufactured synthetically, Sandman said.

Some problems in teaching the mentally retarded are that they lack retention and attention. That means they cannot remember how to do things or figure out what is important.

Sandman's research showed retarded persons who received neuropeptide have increased their retention up to 300 per cent, with the normal or average person's retention increasing 80 per cent.

"It's a bit overstated to say now that we're able to improve people's lives, but we're taking steps in that direction," Sandman said.

Sandman began his research 10 years ago when he first tested it in rats. He said neuropeptide dosages have resulted in "no apparent signs of toxicity" over the past year or so, when he began using the treatment in the retarded.

The substance is approved by the Federal Drug Administration for human testing and is "probably two or three years away from being marketed," Sandman said.

Neuropeptide is manufactured by a Dutch firm using findings from research by Sandman and scientists in Holland.

Sentencing set in murder case

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — Sentencing is scheduled Saturday for a 25-year-old Irish immigrant found guilty of murder in the strangulation-dismemberment of his Ft. Thomas, Ky., wife.

Kevin Murtaugh was convicted by a Campbell County Circuit Court jury Saturday after eight hours of deliberations. His attorney called it the area's "most notorious trial" in 50 years.

Murtaugh, who came to America at age 4 after being reared in a convent, was charged with strangling his wife Diane, 22, and later dismembering the body with an electric saw. He faces life imprisonment for the murder conviction.

The county coroner ruled that the woman died from strangulation.

A fellow administrative judge growled: "He doesn't know that much about the law and doesn't care." Boyd insisted, however, that his office is running smoothly and handling its workload. But he admitted using his secretary to help manage his private affairs.

"There's no denying it," he grunted. "Bette did personal work for me. Ever since I've been into government, I've had my secretaries do personal work for me."

Footnote: On one occasion, Boyd was so ecstatic after an unusually good round of golf that he dispatched a staffer to a government bookstore to purchase a frame. The framed scorecard now hangs in Boyd's office, a personal tribute paid for by the taxpayers.

Washington Whirl: Republican Rep. Bob Kasten of Wisconsin is turning down a presidential invitation. It's an appeal from Jimmy Carter to join the "President's Club," a thinly disguised effort to extract a $25 contribution from those on the huge mailing list. But the mailing lists got fouled up and the GOP congressman is replying to his note from "Jimmy" with a resounding "no!"

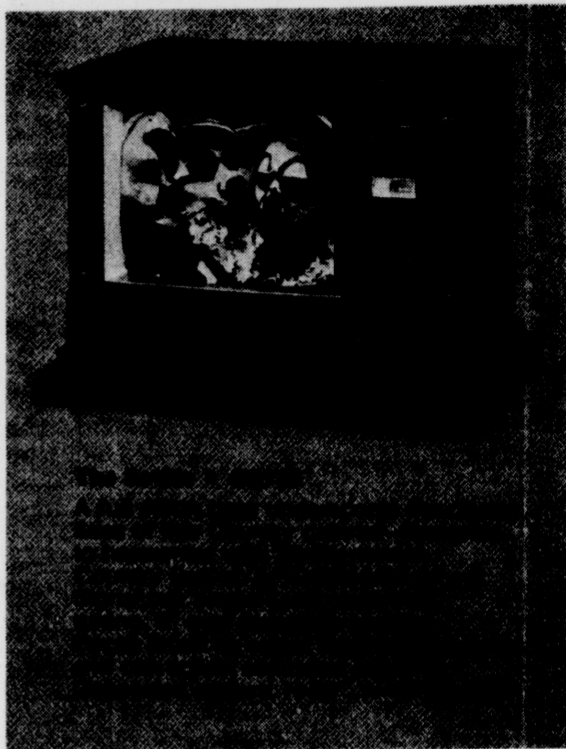

—Every year, Americans throw away half a billion gallons of used, "dirty" oil, a great deal of it from engine oil changes. But a joint study by the Defense Department and the Environmental Protection Agency has found that dirty oil may be better than regular oil once it is "re-refined." A number of San Diego police cars which used refined oil were found, after 100,000 miles, to be in better condition than engines using regular oil. Yet much of the used oil is dumped into the nation's waterways as sludge.

—Pursuasive Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, is using his office letter-heads to drum up contributions for an outfit lobbying against the Panama Canal treaty, the Council for Inter-American Security. Hansen has considerable experience in mustering contributions: He pleaded guilty in 1975 to criminal misdemeanors in connection with his own campaign contributions and was fined $2,200.

—In a recent police case in Washington, D.C., the first eight witnesses turned out to be illegal aliens. But when police called in the Immigration and Naturalization Service, they were astounded to hear that its agents dared not move against the aliens. Immigration bigwigs, the agents complained, had ordered no more "mass roundups" of aliens.

As solons convene this week

Instant voter law on Assembly slate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The legislature convenes this week with Democratic leaders determined to save the election day registration law, a pre-occupation which is expected to keep the lid on some controversial issues.

But concern over Issue 1 on the Nov. 8 ballot apparently will not forestall action, starting Wednesday, on a more immediate danger — the threatened closing of the 110,000-pupil Cleveland school district.

A "bail-out" plan has been readied to allow the state's largest district to borrow $19 million from anticipated tax revenues from 1978, to meet a deficit for the period between Monday and Dec. 31.

Since a number of other school districts are also in danger of closing early for the year, majority Democrats are braced for negative repercussions. As drawn, it would apply only to Cleveland and would impose a repayment schedule that must be completed by next June 30.

While the decision has been made to address the politically-embarrassing Cleveland problem, the legislature will not finalize legislation this week to extend collective bargaining rights to some 500,000 public employees.

That bill is in the limbo of a House-Senate conference committee. The sponsor, Sen. Harry Meshell, D-33 Youngstown, has not planned any meetings, and a stand-off may extend beyond the November election, which Democrats consider critical to their chances of capturing the governor's post in 1978.

Despite claims of nonpartisanship by both sides, Democrats and Republicans alike know that repeal of the law permitting Ohioans to register and vote at polling places on election day would be a big blow to the Ohio Democratic Party and organized labor.

"Vern and Oliver have both been working very hard on the issue," a spokesman for the leadership said of House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe, D-89 New Boston, and Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron.

The result has been a temporary loss of enthusiasm for the in-fighting needed to rally votes for politically-charged legislation, like the proposed limited right of public employees to strike.

Meshell, chairman of the Senate Financing Committee, has tabbed the $517 million capital improvements construction budget as the week's priority item. The House-approved spending plan for state building projects is the last plan in the state's $15 billion 1977-79 budget.

Meshell will accept amendments and vote the bill out of a subcommittee Monday and approve it in full committee no later than Tuesday, he said, so it can go on the Senate floor Wednesday.

House members will be back on Thursday to field the school bill, assuming it passes the Senate. Both chambers plan to adjourn later the same day.

By then Cleveland and state school officials, who have delayed setting a closing date for the district, will know whether kids in Ohio's largest city will be taking Christmas vacation two months early because of the financial difficulties.

Record low temperatures greeted Ohioans early today.

In Cincinnati, the low of 23 not only broke the record low of 29 set in 1970, but was the coldest temperature on record this early in the fall. The low of 25 on Oct. 11, 1964, was the previous season low.

Other records this morning were 22 in Toledo, 24 in Findlay, 25 in Dayton and 26 in Columbus.

A cloud cover protected the northeastern part of the state, where at daybreak, Cleveland had a 40-degree temperature.

Snow flurries mixed at times with rain fell in northeastern Ohio but only a trace of accumulation was reported. Rain showers fell in southern Ohio, with only fractions of an inch recorded.

High pressure was expected to put an end to all precipitation in the state this afternoon and temperatures were to climb into the upper 40s to the mid 50s.

Robbery suspect held in nursing home case

Police said the lone gunman, appearing to be about 16 years old and wearing a ski mask, escaped the Rest Haven Manor Nursing home before dawn Saturday with a small quantity of morphine and a watch taken from the wrist of one of 50 elderly patients.

Bronco kicker even scores touchdown

Denver hands Oakland 30-7 shocker

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

Jim Turner was to be higher than Denver, which is a mile high to begin with. The 36-year-old placekicker caught a touchdown pass in the Broncos' surprise rout of the Oakland Raiders.

Denver was leading Oakland 14-7 in the second quarter Sunday when Turner trotted on for a field-goal attempt. But it was a fake. Holder Norris Weese, a reserve quarterback, took the snap and rolled right to pass.

"I looked first for Riley Odoms (a tight end)," said Weese. "But you can't waste time on the play and I saw Turner wide open ... and couldn't believe it."

Turner had drifted to his left and was standing alone in the end zone where he caught the 25-yard pass that gave the Broncos a 21-7 halftime lead en route to a 30-7 victory. It boosted Denver to a 5-0 record and a one-game lead over Oakland in the American Conference West.

"I ran into the end zone out of fear," said Turner. "Speed wasn't involved."

While Turner's first touchdown in 14 National Football League seasons was certainly a highlight, it was the Denver defense that did in Oakland, intercepting seven Ken Stabler passes, three by linebacker Joe Rizzo, and recovering a fumble.

"We stunk up the place," said Stabler, who gave Oakland a 7-0 lead with a nine-yard scoring pass to tight end Dave Casper in the first quarter. But Denver tied it before the period ended on Craig Morton's 10-yard touchdown toss to Odoms and went ahead in the second quarter on Lonnie Perrien's 16-yard touchdown run.

The loss stopped Oakland's winning streak at 17 regular season and playoff games, one short of the record held by the Chicago Bears of 1933-34 and 1941-42 and the Miami Dolphins of 1972-73.

A successful fake field goal at Bloomington, Minn., resulted in a 21-16 victory for the Minnesota Vikings over the Chicago Bears in overtime.

"It seemed like the thing to do," said Bud Grant, who ordered the fake attempt on first down on the Chicago 11-yard line 6:45 into overtime. It worked as holder Paul Krause, a defensive back who played quarterback at Iowa, passed to Stu Voight near the goal and Voight took it in for the winner.

Chicago, which got 122 yards rushing from Walter Payton, had gone ahead

16-13 in the third quarter on Bob Avellini's two-yard pass to Greg Latta. Fred Cox then tied it at 16 with his third field goal, a 21-yarder, with 12:24 left in regulation time. Matt Blair, Minnesota's 6-foot-5 linebacker, played a key role by blocking a conversion attempt in the second quarter and a field-goal attempt with 1:41 left in regulation play.

Dallas and Baltimore remained the only other unbeaten NFL teams, each 5-0—Dallas whipping Washington 34-16 and Baltimore downing Kansas City 17-6. Elsewhere, Cleveland edged Houston 24-23, Buffalo downed Atlanta 3-0, Miami stopped the New York Jets 21-7, New England nipped San Diego 24-20, Detroit edged Green Bay 10-6, Los Angeles beat New Orleans 14-7, St. Louis topped Philadelphia 21-17, the New York Giants handled San Francisco 20-17 and Seattle outlasted Tampa Bay 30-23.

Cincinnati and Pittsburgh meet tonight.

Cowboys 34, Redskins 16

Efren Herrera kicked field goals of 44 and 52 yards, Roger Staubach threw a 59-yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson and Robert Newhouse scored a six-yard TD in the Cowboys' second-half explosion at Dallas. Washington had one net yard passing as Billy Kilmer was sacked five times.

Colts 17, Chiefs 6

"It wasn't pretty, but it was successful," said Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones of the Colts' struggle against winless Kansas City. Baltimore wrapped up the game in the first quarter on short touchdown runs by Ron Lee and Don McCauley.

Browns 24, Oilers 23

Houston's Billy Johnson returned a punt 87 yards for a touchdown before Cleveland took a 21-20 halftime lead on the strength of Brian Sipe's short TD toss. Houston went head 23-21 on Tony Fritch's third field goal of the game in the fourth quarter, but Don Cockroft won it for the Browns on the final play of the game with a 36-yard three-pointer.

Bills 3, Falcons 0

O.J. Simpson's seven-yard run on third down to the Atlanta 13-yard line set up Neil O'Donoghue's 30-yard field goal in the second quarter as the Bills snapped a 14-game losing streak before only 27,348 fans, the smallest crowd in the five-year history of Buffalo's Rich Stadium.

Simpson's 138 yards rushing also pushed him to 10,062, making him only the second man to break the 10,000-yard mark in NFL history. The other is Jim Brown, who retired with 12,312 yards.

Dolphins 21, Jets 17

The Dolphins raced to a 21-3 halftime lead on two Bob Griese scoring passes and a five-yard touchdown run by Benny Malone, who had 105 yards in the game, then held off the Jets who got two scores on one-yard runs by Clark Gaines.

Patriots 24, Chargers 20

Steve Grogan hit Don Hasselbeck with a one-yard pass for a 7-0 New England lead and then clinched the victory with a four-yard toss to Hasselbeck with 3:09 left in the game. Sam Cunningham rushed for 141 yards for the Patriots.

Lions 16, Packers 6

"You silence the boos by winning," said Greg Landry after his nine-yard touchdown pass to Ray Jarvis with 3:01 remaining gave the Lions their victory. Green Bay had gone ahead 6-3 on Cester Marcol's second field of the game in the third quarter.

Rams 14, Saints 7

"I did things to win. But I did not give a sterling performance," said Pat Haden, who played quarterback in place of Joe Namath and guided Los Angeles to a 14-7 win that tied the Rams with Atlanta at 3-2 for the NFC West lead. Lawrence McCutcheon's one-yard run and Wendell Tyler's 16-yard dash accounted for the Los Angeles touchdowns.

Cardinals 21, Eagles 17

Jim Hart, playing with a neck injury, threw a 38-yard touchdown pass and Terry Metcalf ran 10 yards for one touchdown and Jerry Lattin two yards for another as the Cardinals built up a 21-3 lead at Philadelphia, then withstood two fourth-quarter scoring passes by Ron Jaworski.

Giants 20, 49ers 17

The Giants kept San Francisco winless by withstanding two late 49er touchdowns after building a 20-3 lead on two field goals, a 37-yard touchdown pass by Joe Pisarcik and Willie Spencer's one-yard scoring run.

Seahawks 30, Buccaneers 23

Steve Myer threw touchdown passes of eight, four, 45 and 44 yards, with the last one breaking a 23-23 tie and giving the Seahawks a victory that kept Tampa winless in 19 games since it joined the NFL last season. "We tackled like a bunch of guys in junior high," said Tampa coach McKay.

LA sends series back to the Bronx

Lasorda the faith healer transforms Dodger blues back to Dodger Blue

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An old fashioned revival meeting, called by their very own faith healer, Tom Lasorda, was credited with transforming the Dodger blues back into the Dodger Blue.

"This was the real 1977 Dodger team," said Steve Garvey after Lasorda preached fire and brimstone and the Dodger bats spoke firepower and base hits. The combination was pure salvation for the National League champions, who rapped out 13 hits, four for extra bases, to blast the New York Yankees 10-4 Sunday.

The World Series now hops back to the East Coast with the Yankees ahead three games to two and still lacking one victory before they can claim their 21st world title.

Yankees Manager Billy Martin originally named Ed Figueroa, troubled by a sore finger the past few weeks, to be his starting pitcher for Game 6 Tuesday night. But Figueroa, not as ready to pitch as Martin said he was, balked, forcing Martin to switch to Mike Torrez, the third-game winner.

Lasorda will be going with a proven winner of his own, Burt Hooton, who stifled the New York bats on five hits in the second game at Yankee Stadium last Wednesday night.

On the verge of extinction Sunday, Lasorda turned preacher, telling his players in a pre-game meeting that, win or lose, "I wouldn't trade this baseball team for any other team in the world."

Ron Cey, the Dodger third baseman and the only regular without a hit or a run scored Sunday, was skeptical about the importance of the team meeting, but decided: "The results were there."

Those results included Steve Yeager's three-run homer in the fourth inning, Reggie Smith's two-run blast in the sixth and the sound, nine-hit pitching by Don Sutton.

"I normally don't believe in rah-rah pep meetings," said Yeager, who also contributed a fifth-inning sacrifice fly before leaving the game with strained ligaments in his knee.

Yeager said he had two games left in his ailing knee. "I'll see you Wednesday night (after Game 7) in our clubhouse," Yeager told newsmen.

Garvey also expects to be in the winning clubhouse Wednesday night, but said it wouldn't be a bad idea to have another pre-game revival meeting.

"At one point we were 7-0 after team meetings," said Garvey, who had a double and a single and scored a pair of runs. "I guess this makes us 8-0."

"We're human beings and human beings get tired mentally and depressed mentally. What Tom Lasorda did was he got everybody together and, again, told us of his feelings of warmth and affection for us. As human beings we can benefit from this."

"It got our feelings moving in the right direction."

That direction was evident immediately in Game 5. Dodger leadoff batter Davey Lopes socked a triple off the top of the left-field wall against Yankees starter Don Gullett, who started on Opening Day but did not figure in the decision. No. 2 batter Bill Russell smacked a single to left for a 1-0 lead.

Garvey stroked a double to right center in the fourth and came home on Dusty Baker's single to left, which Lou Piniella misplayed, allowing Baker to take second. That was New York's first error of the Series and it took just one batter for error No. 2, as third baseman Graig Nettles dropped Lee Lacy's ground ball. Yeager then followed with his second Series homer for a 5-0 lead.

"It was do or die today," said Yeager. "The homer gave us a big inning and took the pressure off the rest of the team. You saw the key to our game today. Davey Lopes and Bill Russell getting on base ahead of our big hitters like Smith, Cey and Garvey."

The Dodgers made it 8-0 in the fifth on RBI singles by Baker and Lee Lacy and Yeager's sacrifice fly.

Baker credited the team meeting and the team's leadoff hitters in the Dodgers revival at the plate.

"We were just reminded that we're better than we've been playing, that we haven't been playing the way we played all year," Baker said.

"Russell and Lopes got things moving. When they're on base, the batters behind them see better pitches. It makes things easier for us. They ignite things for us."

Russell got the Dodgers believers in the dugout and the faithful of 55,955 in the stands up and clapping again with a single to right-center in the sixth. Smith, a victim of a rubber ball bearing from the stands at Yankee Stadium last Wednesday, sent a hard ball back into the stands for his second Series homer.

"If today's clubhouse atmosphere was any indication, then I feel our chances are good," Smith said. "I'm happy to be going back to Yankee Stadium. It's a big ballpark with big gaps and we're a gap-hitting team."

"The fans? They're gonna be there. The less said about them the better."

The Yankees scored twice off Sutton in the seventh and got consecutive solo homers from Thurman Munson and Reggie Jackson in the eighth.

"We still have the advantage," said Jackson, one of the centers of the storms that have the Yankees calling team meetings not to bring people together, like the Dodgers, but to keep them from going for each other's throats.

"They have to play 1,000 ball and we only have to play .500 ball," Jackson said.

As Garvey pointed out the Dodgers have played 1,000 ball immediately after one of Lasorda's revival meetings.

Michigan crushes Wisconsin, 56-0

Gerald OSU fastback model

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Ohio State quarterback Rod Gerald may be the fastest quarterback in the Big Ten. He can complete a pass when he has to. He makes the option an awesome challenge to defend.

"He was the difference," Iowa Coach Bob Commings said of Gerald, who ran for 100 yards and two touchdowns and completed nine of 12 passes in the Buckeyes' 27-6 victory over Iowa. "He's as fast as any running back they have."

Iowa held No. 5-ranked Ohio State to just one field goal in the first quarter, but the Buckeyes wore down Iowa after that.

"They're just much better than us, and it hurts me bitterly to say that," said Commings. "But we're getting better."

"They (Ohio State) can still be beaten," said Commings. "We could have beaten them if we'd taken care of ourselves."

Ohio State won the coin toss, and Coach Woody Hayes chose to kick off to take advantage of a gusty 25 mile an hour wind. An early Iowa drive was halted by a dropped pass, but punter Dave Holsclaw was able to keep the Buckeyes out of good field position.

"Iowa is better than it has been," acknowledged Hayes. "This year they were more dogged."

Proof of that was a second quarter defensive stand that kept Ohio State out of the end zone on four successive tries inside the one yard line.

"There aren't many teams that could stop us down there on the one yard line or one foot line or whatever it was," said Hayes.

Gerald ran 44 yards for a touchdown off the option, and two field goals by Vlade Janakievski gave Ohio State a 13-0 halftime lead. Gerald burst two yards for a touchdown in the third quarter, and reserve fullback Paul Campbell crashed over from the one in the final period.

Iowa didn't score until just over a minute remained when fullback Jon Lazar drove in from the two.

"Our defense was exceptional last week (in a 46-0 shutout of Purdue) and almost as good this week," said Hayes. "We really throttled them until there at the last when they finally punched one over on us."

Ohio State, the Big Ten rushing leader, netted 373 yards on the ground while holding Iowa to 69 yards rushing.

For those of you who have been watching Michigan football over the last few years, that unfamiliar gimmick the Wolverines incorporated into their offense over the weekend is known as a forward pass.

It began early in the century, reportedly when Notre Dame teammates Gus Dorais and Knute Rockne cooked one up, and it finally made Coach Bo Schembechler's playbook Saturday when he let quarterback Rick Leach throw an astounding 16 times during the top-rated Wolverines 56-0 slaughter of 14th-ranked Wisconsin.

"I always knew I could throw, even though some people don't think so," said Leach, whose 10 completions were a career high. "I've always had confidence in my passing game. The reason the coach had us throw early was because they were coming up to stop our option and that left their defensive backfield open."

Leach zipped scoring passes of seven yards to Doug Marsh and 22 to Gene Johnson and scored on a two-yard run.

"You saw great performance by a great little quarterback," Schembechler said. "He picked them to pieces. He can beat you with his arm. He can beat you with his legs. He can beat you with his head. He can beat you because he's a winner."

However, Leach's best passing performance belonged to Brigham Young's Marc Wilson. Making his first start in place of the injured Gifford Nielsen, Wilson passed for 332 yards and a mere seven touchdowns in the Cougars' 63-17 drubbing of previously unbeaten Colorado State.

Randy McEachern of second-ranked Texas, which beat Oklahoma last week, also made his first varsity start and, while he didn't throw any touchdown passes, he delivered key completions of 14, 31 and 28 yards in an 80-yard fourth-quarter drive that produced the game's only touchdown and a 13-9 victory over eighth-ranked Arkansas.

The losers' Steve Little kicked a 67-yard field goal, tying the major college record set earlier in the season by Russell Erxleben of Texas.

Besides Arkansas and Wisconsin, three other members of the Top Twenty were beaten while third-ranked Colorado was held to a 17-17 deadlock by Kansas.

I.M. Hipp rushed for 165 yards and all three Nebraska touchdowns but committed a fumble that enabled Iowa State to upset the ninth-ranked Cornhuskers 24-21 on Scott Kollman's 32-yard field goal in the third period.

Art Still rambled 52 yards with a blocked field goal, Dallas Owens logged an intercepted pass 81 yards and 12th-ranked Kentucky held Charles Alexander, the nation's leading rusher, to 87 yards as the Wildcats knocked off No. 16 Louisiana State 33-13.

Tribe first baseman injured in accident

SOMERSET, Pa. (AP) — The wife and two-year-old daughter of Cleveland Indians baseball first baseman Andre Thornton were killed today in an accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Dead are Gertrude Thornton, 28, and the couple's daughter Theresa.

Thornton, 28, and 4-year-old Andre Thornton Jr. were taken to Somerset Community Hospital for treatment. The family lived in Chagrin Falls, Ohio, but also listed as West Chester, Pa., residence, police said.

State police said the accident occurred about five miles east of Somerset in the eastbound lane. Details were sketchy, but authorities noted the road surface was icy.

Thornton, who was driving, and his son were both reported in good condition. A hospital spokeswoman said they were both expected to be released.

Thornton sustained abrasions to the left side of his head, but x-rays proved

Forgers capture Pony League crown

The Forgers beat the Big Boys Saturday afternoon, 22-8, and won the 1977 Pony League championship with a perfect 4-0 record. In the other game played Saturday, the Interns shut out the Greenbacks, 28-0.

The Forgers were led to the win by running back Duke Hanscel, who ran for 71 yards, 56 of them for a touchdown. Top runner Fred Jones had 84 yards while Vernon Smith added another touchdown on a 13-yard run. Defensively, Brad Forsythe intercepted a pass and turned it into a touchdown to start the scoring. Jones, Hanscel and Tom Kimmet each tallied for tackles for the winners.

Chip Tate scored the only touchdown for the Big Boys. He also led the Big Boys rushing attack with 41 yards. Colby Taylor had 20 yards and Kevin Hennessy scored the conversion on a pass.

Hennessy led the defense with five tackles and Fred Reynolds had four.

In the other game, the Interns dominated the offense as Jeff Shaw ran for 171 yards and caught passes for 39 more. He scored a pair of TD's, one on a 15-yard run and the other on a 19-yard pass. Dave Williams and Travis Anderson scored the other touchdowns for the winners.

For the defense, Shaw was credited for eight tackles while Chris Shirkey added seven.

Marty Wilson led the Greenback offense with 26 yards against a tough Intern line. The defense had several outstanding performers, including

Todd Thomas with nine tackles and D. Bailey with eight take-downs. Pictures of Pony League action, taken throughout the season by Frank Henry, will be on sale this week at Nichol's Men's Wear.

PONY LEAGUE CHAMPIONS — The Mac Tool Forgers clinched the Pony League football championship of 1977 Saturday with a 22-8 win over the Big Boys. Healy helps keep the peace

Yankees have own diamond diplomat

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

He hasn't rapped out a hit. He hasn't scored a run. In fact, he hasn't been in an official game since Aug. 31 and he's appeared in only one since Aug. 12.

Yet, if the New York Yankees should go on to win the World Series, he should be given some consideration for the Most Valuable Player award.

His name is Francis Xavier Healy. To feuding Reggie Jackson and Thurman Munson and maybe even to Manager Billy Martin, he should be called "St. Francis."

St. Francis the Peacemaker.

"If it hadn't been for Fran, I am not sure I could have survived all the pressure of the summer," says Jackson, the team's volatile $2.9 million outfielder.

"He's been a mountain of strength for me."

Munson, the Yankees' proud and sensitive catcher, speaks in less flamboyant language but the message comes across just the same.

"A great friend — I appreciate everything he has done," adds Munson.

When Jackson and Munson were at each other's throats after the big, mustachioed catcher took offense at a remark attributed to Jackson in a magazine article ("I am the straw that stirs the drink, Munson could only stir it bad") it was Healy who smoothed the waters.

When Jackson and Martin almost came to blows in the dugout after Jackson was yanked from a nationally-televised game at Boston in June, it was Healy who prevented the incident from becoming a disruptive flareup.

When the Yankees appeared near collapse from internal bickering in mid-August, it was Healy who got Munson and Jackson together and, as a group, interceded to save Martin's job with owner George Steinbrenner.

"Aw, I've done nothing," insists the 6-foot-5, soft-natured third string catcher from Holyoke, Mass. "I'm a good friend of Reggie's. I am also a good friend of Thurman's and a good friend of Billy's."

"I don't want to see these guys cut each other up."

Healy, 31, began his big league career at Kansas City in 1969, played briefly at San Francisco, returned to Kansas City, then came to the Yankees in exchange for Larry Gura in 1976.

Healy appeared in 46 games for the Yankees in 1976, filling in well for Munson in mid-summer, but has seen less service this season because of the acquisition of another backup catcher, Cliff Johnson.

"I got to know Reggie when he was with Oakland and I was with Kansas City," Healy says. "When Reggie came to the Yankees, he, Munson and I hit it off well. We went out together and ribbed each other all the time."

"After Reggie's magazine article appeared, the relationship between Reggie and Thurman cooled. I tried my best to keep them both loose."

Says Jackson: "I was going through hell at this time. I was getting creamed by the press. The fans were on me. My father quit going to Yankee games. My mother wouldn't listen to them."

"I got moody and depressed," says

Healy. "It was Fran who jolted me out of it. He talked to me hours on end. He helped me beat my batting slump. He was a guiding light."

Healy scoffs at the suggestion that he is a diamond Dr. Kissinger.

"They talk about this being a team of egos," he said. "I think it's a euphemism for pride. The owner, Jackson and Munson are all proud and highly charged."

"They all want to win. This generates sparks and drive. That's why the Yankees win. They don't accept defeat graciously."

"I am friendly with both Reggie and Thurman, but they are different. Reggie reflects first, then reacts. Thurman reacts, then reflects."

"They complement each other. They are volatile. But they are great for baseball, great for the Yankees."

Trying for first win in Pittsburgh

Bengals swear they're ready

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers, coming off a black Sunday, look for a little light tonight against the Cincinnati Bengals.

"It's important for us to win. We've got some tough competition in our division," said Terry Bradshaw, who may start at quarterback for the Steelers with a plastic cast on the left wrist he fractured in the punishing loss last Sunday in Houston.

The small bone was cracked in Bradshaw's wrist when he fell on it after being run out of bounds, but he returned to practice on schedule last week with the aid of the cast.

"Terry's an amazingly rapid healer," Steeler team physician Dr. Paul Steele said last week. "I'm going back to medical school and take a class on Bradshaw."

If Bradshaw can't play in tonight's nationally televised game, his loss will be nothing new to the Steelers. He was sidelined with a serious neck sprain when Pittsburgh earned a pivotal 23-6 victory here last season over the Bengals.

However, the man who quarterbacked Pittsburgh in that 1976 game, Mike Kruczek, is out for the season with a shoulder separation also sustained in Houston.

That means the Steeler starter will be Bradshaw or four-year veteran Neil Graff, who rejoined the team this week after being cut late in preseason.

The only other Steeler quarterback is rookie Cliff Stoudt. Of course, there's also rookie defensive back Tony Dungy, who finished the Houston game as the Steeler quarterback because Stoudt was on the inactive list.

Both the Steelers and Bengals take 2-2 records into the game, and Cincinnati will be bidding for its first victory ever at Three Rivers Stadium, where it has lost seven in a row.

"I feel better before this Pittsburgh game," Bengal defensive end Coy Bacon said this week.

"Last year, the echo was heard for 100 miles — Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh."

"They were frightened here," added Bacon, who was a newcomer to the Bengals last season.

"I think that everybody has more confidence on the team now," he said.

The Bengals are coming off a 17-7 victory over the Green Bay Packers, and the Cincinnati running game may be bolstered by the return of running back Archie Griffin, who's been nursing a rib injury.

Irwin wins Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Hale Irwin won $30,000, a golf tournament and a ton of respect from a fellow golfer after his closing-round three-under-par 67 in the $150,000 Texas Open.

Irwin, battling Texan Miller Barber for the first place prize, paused on the 18th tee Sunday to offer encouragement to Carlton "Slugger" White, a second-year pro fighting for his PGA player's card.

"I can't describe how bad I felt after making that double bogey," said an emotional White. "But Hale came over and patted me on the back and told me to forget it, that I still had a chance."

White then placed his tee shot at the treacherous 175-yard 18th hole about 10 feet below the pin. He two-putted for a par three and collected $6,600, thus assuring himself of at least another year on the tour.

Expert Says TV Stereotyping Is Here To Stay

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Joseph Turow, assistant professor of communications at Purdue University, sees something in common between television programs and the paint-by-number sets. And it's not just color.

Turow, a researcher in the Department of Communication, is interested in the reasons for social and physical stereotyping by the television industry. He recently spent two months in California interviewing writers, directors, agents, casting directors and producers to learn how they select actors for "bit" or small parts.

Turow calls the constant flow of characters seen on the tube a "landscape of people." It is a fairly predictable landscape, he says, one in which some groups — notably women and minorities — are usually given just certain spots (roles) on the canvas, or none at all.

He cites examples of two basic guidelines followed by the TV industry in casting actors. One is "credibility," which he explains as the professionals' "perception of what Middle America thinks a person in a particular occupation normally looks like."

For example, casting directors believe an actor would readily be accepted as a judge if the part were played by a white-haired, middle-aged man. They are hesitant to select an untypical-looking person for a part since they contend it distracts viewers from the story, Turow says.

The second guideline is visual balance, or "how characters look next to one another." The physical make-up of a person — short, heavy, bald, etc. — can affect whether he or she will be cast next to another actor. For example, in "Starsky and Hutch," a man who is better-looking than the two policemen would probably not be selected for a guest part since he would detract attention from the two stars.

Shows also have certain "looks" which those in charge of casting try to maintain. For example, "Charlie's Angels" is a "beautiful people" show while "Baretta" is a "street people, grungy-type" show, says Turow.

"Agents, casting directors and other persons involved tend to settle into certain comfortable casting 'cliques' — unless they're influenced by outside pressures," says Turow.

Many of those interviewed said they were responding to pressures to increase the number of women, old persons, Mexican-Americans and Orientals seen on television, he says. (Blacks, they contend, are doing fine.) However, he adds, it was stressed that selection of such persons must still be done according to "credibility."

What effect does such stereotyped casting have on children who watch TV?

Turow believes it may give young persons incorrect ideas about what the world is like and what possibilities they have in life. He doesn't believe TV stereotyping will ever be eliminated, though.

The language of bidding in the upper echelons of bridge is sometimes altogether different from the language of bidding in the average home game. Many of the top experts' bids don't have their natural meaning, but take on a special meaning in accordance with previous arrangements.

Consider this deal played by Jamaica and the U.S. in the 1976 world championship. The bidding went as shown when the Jamaicans were North-South.

Here is an explanation of the bids:

1. An artificial forcing bid showing 16 or more points.
2. An artificial response guaranteeing either three kings or one ace and one king.
3. 22 to 24 high-card points.
4. A transfer bid guaranteeing five or more hearts.
5. A strength-showing cuebid announcing good heart support.
6. Revealing a five-card diamond suit in addition to the five-card heart suit previously indicated.
7. The grand slam force commanding South to bid seven diamonds with two of the three highest diamond honors.
8. South obeys North's command.

When the U.S. was North-South, the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	2♣ (1)
Pass	2♥ (2)	Pass	2 NT (3)
Pass	3♦ (4)	Pass	3♥ (5)
Pass	4♠ (6)	Pass	4♥ (7)
Pass	6♦ (8)	Pass	7 NT (9)

1. An artificial bid indicating a powerful hand.
2. A constructive response showing at least five hearts.
3. 22 to 24 high-card points.
4. Showing a two-suiter.
5. The normal preference.
6. First-round club control.
7. First-round spade control.
8. Indicating at least five diamonds of good quality.
9. All roads lead to Rome!

Pipe Smoking Is Dangerous Too

I smoke a pipe. I do not inhale any smoke, or at least very little as compared to cigarette smoking which I used to do. I would like to know if cancer is caused by pipe smoking. It makes my tongue irritated in the late afternoon or evening. I don't know if this is because of the heat of the burning tobacco or the tobacco juices themselves. — Mr. F.W.A., Ore.

Dear Mr. A.: Unlike many people who have shifted from cigarette smoking to pipe smoking, you wisely question the ultimate possibility of trouble. Far too many people who are delighted with the fact that they have given up cigarettes completely overlook the very real hazard of pipe smoking.

Irritation caused by hot smoke is known to produce little white patches, or "leukoplakia," in the delicate lining of the mouth. Sometimes these can degenerate and develop malignant characteristics.

Even those people who think they do not inhale their pipe or cigar smoke do, in reality, inhale a surprising amount of smoke into their lungs.

Remember that when you keep puffing that pipe you are surrounding yourself on the outside with a layer of thick smoke which ultimately will, at least in part, find its way back into your lungs. Incidentally, smokers must not forget that the pall of smoke that surrounds them also surrounds the innocent non-smokers near them who must pay a penalty for someone else's habit.

The irritation of your tongue in the evening is simply due to the fact that you have been burning your tongue all day with hot smoke. The heat of burning tobacco, tobacco juices, nicotine and tars all play havoc with the delicate unprotected linings of the mouth and the lungs.

Undoubtedly, cigarette smoking is the chief offender. But don't overlook the fact that neither pipe nor cigar smoking can be exonerated as a possible cause of trouble in the bronchial tubes, the lung and the circulatory system.

DRIVER SLIGHTLY INJURED — A Hillsboro woman, 26-year-old Carol A. Stratton, suffered minor head and ankle injuries when her car (pictured here) struck a tree stump and flipped over onto a concrete fence post Sunday morning.

ning. She reportedly failed to make a right curve along U.S. 62 at Stafford Road and travelled off the left road side. She was treated and released at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Several other weekend mishaps probed

Woman escapes serious injury in crash at U.S. 62 junction

A Hillsboro woman escaped serious injury when her car overturned after hitting a tree stump off U.S. 62 at Stafford Road Sunday.

Carol A. Stratton, 26, of Hillsboro, was taken to Fayette County Memorial Hospital following the 8:24 a.m. crash. Hospital officials said she was treated for head and ankle injuries and released.

Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported Ms. Stratton failed to negotiate a right curve along U.S. 62 and ran off the left roadside where the car struck a tree stump. The vehicle then flipped over on its top and landed on a cement corner post damaging three rods of fence.

The Concord-Fence Fire Department responded with sheriff's deputies in case of fire, but no fire occurred. Ms. Stratton was cited for failure to drive on the right half of the road.

Sheriff's deputies also reported a car was moderately damaged when it struck a deer on Ohio 41 about three and a half miles south of Washington C.H.

According to the sheriff's department report, Beverly S. VanDyke, 20, of 9008 Cross Road, stated the deer came onto the roadway while she was northbound on Ohio 41 around 11:40 Friday night. She reportedly tried to stop, but struck the animal, which then ran off into a field.

Two hit and run accidents occurred over the weekend, according to sheriff's department reports.

A hitskip driver struck a utility pole along Rowe Ging Road about half a mile west of Ohio 41. Sheriff's deputies believe the vehicle went left of center after rounding a sharp right curve in the road and struck the pole. The pole was reportedly broken off about half way up. The accident occurred sometime Saturday or Sunday.

Another hitskip driver struck a metal farm gate Sunday morning after failing to make a left turn along Armbrust Road, one mile east of Staunton.

Washington C.H. police officers also investigated two reported hit and run accidents over the weekend.

Ronald M. Mickle, of Tower Mobile Park, told police officers his vehicle was struck on the right side sometime between 4 and 5:45 p.m. Sunday while he was in the Kroger Co. store, 548 Clinton Ave. Mickle's car sustained slight damage.

John Bowles of 1402 Meadow Drive, reported his car received slight damage in the right front around 12:20 p.m. Saturday while it was parked in the Washington Square parking lot near Columbus Avenue.

Two cars collided on W. Court Street just west of Hinde Street Saturday causing minor damage to both vehicles.

Police officers reported Kevin M. Fleming, 23, of London, attempted to change lanes and struck the front of a car driven by Edward E. Adams, 24, of Springfield. Neither driver was injured in the 5:33 p.m. accident.

One driver was cited following a collision Saturday night on E. Court Street near Fayette Street.

Both cars sustained slight damage when David A. Coil, 24, 702 E. Paint St., struck another car which was stopped in traffic. The other driver was Tony L. Hatton, 17, of 285 S. Howard St. No injuries were reported.

Control measures set for cutworms

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — Male cutworm moths can't help it. They just love the smell of sex pheromones.

The crop-damaging insects are attracted to pheromones because they are secreted by female cutworm moths. Research which has resulted in manufacture of a synthetic equivalent of the substance is about to change control of the pests.

Scientists from the Ohio State University Cooperative Extension Service and the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, Ohio, have used the manufactured substance in corn and vegetable fields in northeast Ohio to reveal the presence and activity of the male moths.

By saturating a field with pheromones, scientists found that it's even possible to make the males too confused to find the females. Given time, this could be used to decrease the population of the crop eaters.

Dr. Roy W. Rings of the Ohio Agriculture Research and Development Center at Wooster said the findings resulted from a four-year effort to develop ways to control the insect.

Incident causes $85 in damage

Car vandalism case probed

Vandals smashed an automobile windshield sometime Saturday behind a Second Street residence.

The windshield of a 1969 model Ford, belonging to Frank Myers Sr., of 517 Second St., was broken sometime after midnight Saturday while it was parked behind his home, Washington C.H. police officers reported. The damage was estimated at about $85.

Police officers also investigated another vandalism act Saturday night at a S. Main Street residence.

Ruby Schiller, 42, of 921 S. Main St., reportedly told investigating officers someone threw a small stone through her double picture window around 7:50 p.m. and caused an estimated $60 in damages.

Over 16 gallons of gasoline was stolen from a service station in Jeffersonville Saturday morning.

A car pulled up to the self serve pumps at the Gulf service station on U.S. 35 at I-71, according to a Fayette County Sheriff's Department report. The driver pumped about $10 worth of gasoline into the vehicle before driving off without paying. The incident occurred around 7:10 a.m.

Several large bags of trash were dumped in a field along Myers Road, about half a mile northeast of Danville Road Wednesday.

Jess Schlichter, 6383 Myers Road, reported to Fayette County sheriff's deputies someone dropped five plastic garbage bags over a fence onto his property about 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating the incident.

Public meet set Oct. 18 on mental health needs

The Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board will hold a public forum at 7 p.m. Oct. 18 in the Grace United Methodist Church on the board's planning project for comprehensive mental health services.

Anna Marie Stott, project director, and Billie Costigan, assistant director, met with the Fayette County citizens planning committee recently to present background data on the present mental health services and discuss comprehensive planning philosophy.

Ms. Stott urges community involvement. "We really want citizens of the community to come and share with us the many stresses and problems they, their friends and others in the community are struggling with. We all face in our own lives and the lives of those around us, the pain caused by the death of love one, unhappy or broken marriages, conflict between parents and children, the severe pressures on single parent families, the loneliness of isolation, problems of drinking and drug abuse, and many other problems," she said.

Mrs. Joan Lucas, a registered nurse, a member of the citizens planning committee, said, "Only by citizens of Fayette County expressing their views on mental health problems and needed services in Fayette County, can we work toward effectively meeting those needs. I strongly urge citizens to attend this public meeting."

The planning project is designed to study the needs in each county of the Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board's service area, in an effort to offer a broad range of mental health services that will allow an individual to receive the kind of service they need, when they need it.

Anti-Klan rally held

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Leaders of a Statehouse demonstration by about 100 persons and a march on City Hall Saturday said they fear the Ku Klux Klan will try to feed on the nation's problems to swell its ranks.

Paul Hollister, 27, of Columbus, said the Klan is trying to capitalize on "problems like unemployment and desegregation. I don't think support for the Klan is very big," he said, "but they can get bigger."

Hollister said he is a member of a defense committee seeking support for six persons arrested at KKK rallies on July 4 and Labor Day holidays.

The two-hour rally by demonstrators from Cincinnati, Dayton, Cleveland and Columbus was organized by the defense committee and the National United Workers Organization.

The demonstrators, carrying banners and posters and chanting slogans such as "KKK go away, united we are here to stay," listened to speakers at the Statehouse before a downtown march to City Hall for another round of speeches.

"The Klan is guilty of trying to keep black people in near slavery conditions," Hollister told the crowd. "The Klan is spreading the idea that white people should blame blacks and other minorities for problems in society. I don't think that an organization like that has a right to exist."

Ms. Luque reports that she has approximately 25 students wishing to make the trip which will cost $675 per student.

The city school board will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday night in the Washington Middle School.

The county school board will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the district's administrative offices located at 414 E. Court St.
